WHAT IS E-INVOICING?

E-invoicing, digital invoicing or electronic invoicing refers to the exchange of invoices between suppliers and buyers in an integrated electronic format.

E-invoices are not simply scanned paper or PDF versions of an invoice. In fact, they are XML files built according to a universal structure, such as the Universal Business Language or UBL. That's why we use the term structured electronic invoices or SEIs.

Such SEIs can be read and processed fully automatically by software packages worldwide.

WHAT IS PEPPOL?

Peppol is a secure network for sending and receiving structured electronic invoices.

It was developed with the support of the European Commission to combat invoice fraud and reduce the VAT gap. Belgium has also chosen Peppol as the standard for sending digital invoices.

E-invoices ...

- 1 are created, transmitted and received electronically
- 2 are fully digital, no scans
- 3 consist of structured data
- 4 are sent securely via Peppol

WHAT IS BILLIT?

Billit is an online platform for quick and easy digital invoicing. You can also process incoming invoices in an instant and, thanks to a convenient dashboard, keep an overview of your finances at all times.

Our package offers tailor-made solutions for any type of business, from the self-employed to SMEs and large corporations. We provide services to public bodies too. Businesses can use Billit to link up with existing tools and software, such as a CRM, webshop or cash register system, to fully automate repetitive tasks and save even more time. You can also give your accountant access to your data so you never have to email your accounts again.

MANDATORY DIGITAL INVOICING

FROM 2026

The Belgian government is fully committed to digital invoicing. From 1 January 2026, e-invoicing via Peppol will be mandatory for all transactions between corporate taxpayers. This decision will have a major impact because, from 2026, all Belgian businesses will have to invoice digitally – including your business. So, switching to e-invoicing now is a particularly smart move.

Currently, some 60% of all invoices in this country are sent by email. Around 25% of these invoices are already in a structured XML format.

DIGITAL INVOICING WITH BILLIT:

A WIN-WIN FOR YOU AND YOUR PARTNERS

Digital invoicing has been gaining popularity for years. Understandable, because an increasing number of governments throughout Europe are promoting and making this mandatory to close the VAT gap. Yet e-invoicing via Billit also has many advantages, not only for you, but also for your customers, suppliers and your accountant.

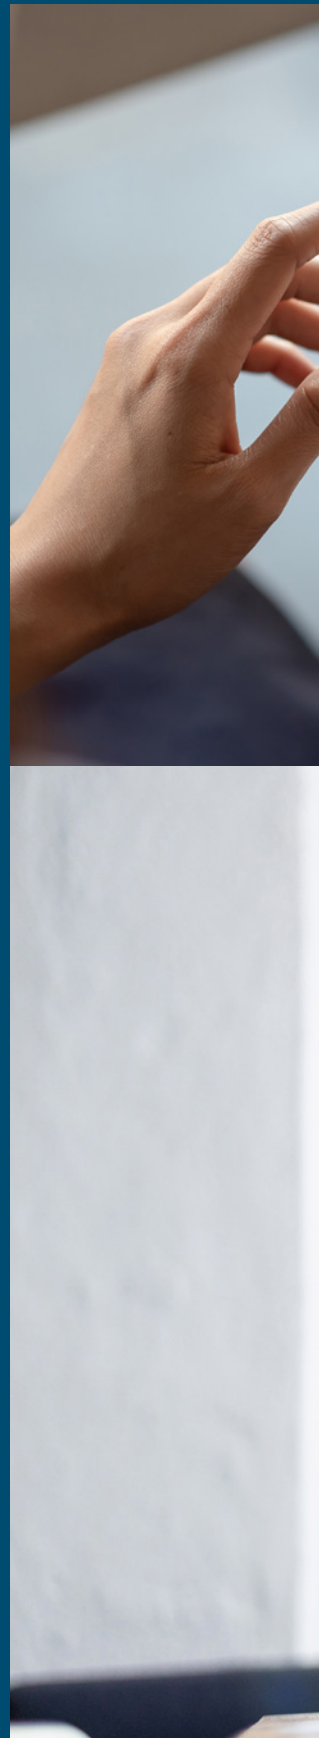

Entrepreneurs can save both time and money in preparing, issuing and processing invoices. A study by the University of Hasselt has shown that e-invoices can save you 75% compared to paper invoices. What's more, you keep better track of your finances and avoid becoming a victim of invoice fraud.

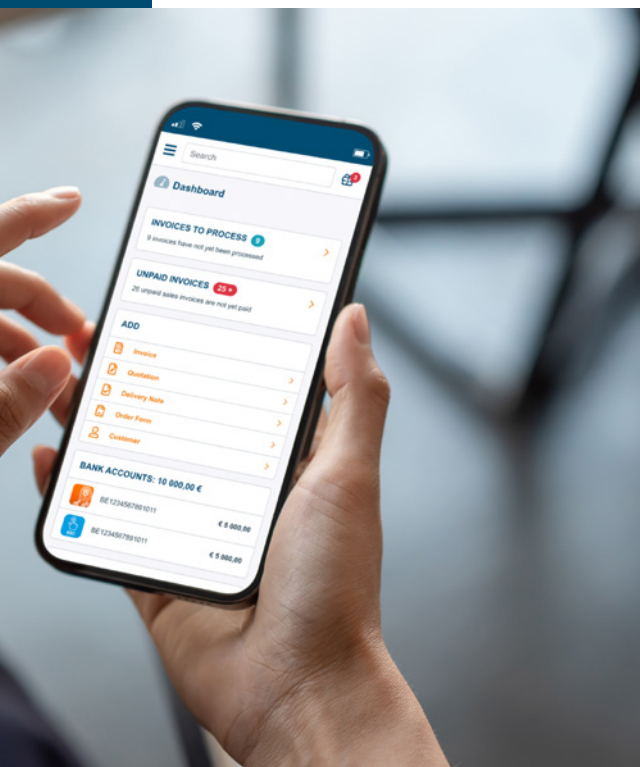

Your customers also benefit when you use Billit because they will never have to wait long for quotes or invoices, and they can easily pay using a QR code, which means you get paid faster.

Also, your suppliers can see at a glance the stage you have reached in processing their invoices.

It all makes your accountant's job a lot easier. The digital, universal UBL format lets them import your documents and process them in their accounting software much faster.

Finally, digital invoicing significantly reduces the risk of human errors, both in your own business and that of your partners. Retyping data will be a thing of the past!
